The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes Adventure VI – The Boscombe Valley Mystery

Once again that policeman, Lestrade,
An erroneous deduction has made,
He accepts with no fight
That Holmes has it right.
"Why does fate play such tricks," Holmes then said.

Sandy Kozinn

Charles left Australia and to Boscombe came
He paid his neighbor blackmail just the same
The villain was the man next door
His son and the villain's girl true love swore
A photo wasn't the only frame

Karen Olson

One wanted their children to wed,
"Ah, no chance" the second one said.
So two did kill one,
Then two was undone
And one's son took two's girl to bed

Bill Dorn

McCarthy died while yelling 'Cooee'
Holmes thinks Charles' murderer knew he
Last word sounded like 'rat'
The weapon a stone flat
To protect loved ones can be spooky
