

LIMERICKS

The Memoirs of Sherlock Holmes Adventure XXIV – The Adventure of the Greek Interpreter

Mycroft was smart as they come,
Didn't need many clues, only some.
    But his thinking was bad
    When he put in that ad.
Oh, Mycroft, that was really dumb!

Sandy Kozinn

Mycroft's neighbor was forced to speak
To a half-starved man who only spoke Greek
    The villains wanted him to sign some paper
    Until a girl named Sophy interrupted the caper
And Mycroft thought Sherlock a freak

Karen Olson

Mister Melas was fluent in Greek,
An interpreter who was quite meek,
    Thus this man was kidnapped,
    And his strength was all sapped,
By some charcoal fumes that did so reek.

Bill Dorn

Paul and Sophy held against their will
Meles is called on due to his skill
    Paul will never give in
    Harold and Wilson 'fin'
Paul meets his end by a charcoal grille

Steve Mason