The Casebook of Sherlock Holmes Adventure LI – The Adventure of the Creeping Man

Presbury wanted more youth,
Unbecoming, to tell you the truth.
 When he took monkey gland,
 It affected him, and
Turned him into a being uncouth.

Sandy Kozinn

Holmes saw the professor crouched like a frog
And his daughter thought him slipping a cog
 So, he visited a Prague man to whom he pled
 For extract of Langur in hopes he could wed
He shouldn't have monkeyed around with the dog

Karen Olson

Edith Presbury's father could climb,
But he did it all in pantomime,
 He consumed monkey glands,
 And he scraped up his hands,
But he could not return to his prime.

Bill Dorn

Oh, the whacky things we do for love
Looking to science to help, sort of Presbury seeks to be young
 From trees he even swung
Learned not to mess with live from above
